The articles appearing in this volume were first presented at a conference entitled “The Committee of Union and Progress: Founders, Ideology, and Structure” organized by the Armenian Studies Program of California State University, Fresno, October 12-13, 2018. They have since been edited and appear here in a single volume with a new historical introduction and illustrations. The volume includes a collection of articles that reflect on Ottoman Armenians and the Turkish nationalist movement of the Committee of Union and Progress before WWI. They provide new, critical insights on the Armenian Genocide of 1915 and the establishment of the Turkish Republic in 1923.

“This book introduces new approaches to the study of the Committee of Union and Progress,” said Prof. Der Mugrdechian, general editor of the Armenian Series. “It is a significant contribution to the study of early 20th century Ottoman history.”
